

Game title: The game's title is Pizza Panic.

What's being delivered: We're delivering pizzas to customers to feed them and not get fired.

Why is this fun?: This is fun and interesting as players get to navigate a map and collect items, and deliver them as fast as they can, while avoiding obstacles.

- Player goal: Deliver pizzas to customers.
- Win condition: All customers got their pizzas.
- Lose condition: There is none
- Time limit: No time limit

Player: The player controls a small red car that they use to move around and get/deliver pizzas. The player controls movement with WASD, W goes forward, S reverse, and A and D steer left and right respectively.

Collectibles: We can collect pizzas and a speedboost. There's 4 pizzas and 1 speed boost in total. These spawn in fixed spots.

Obstacles: Solid objects that you can't drive through in real life are obstacles, if the player collides with them, their speed is reduced while they're colliding with them. The obstacles just slow down players.

Delivery zones: We deliver items at houses, their trigger boxes allow for us to deposit pizzas. You just need to run into it.

Delivery layout:

- The whole map is surrounded by trees, so players can't go out of bounds.
- The only obstacles are things like houses, street lamps, bushes, trees, etc.
- Players can drive either on or off the road to get their packages to the houses.
- The player will have to steer out of the way to not hit obstacles, and make turns to reach the goal.

UI Feedback: The player can see when they have a speed boost active. The UI also contains the score, and whether a player is searching for pizza boxes, or delivering them.

New twist: There are speed boost items that greatly increase your player's speed until the player collides with an object.

This changes strategy as players can now make the choice between purely targeting pizza delivery to win in the shortest amount of time, or go for the speed boost first. The downside to this is that if the player collides with an object while using the boost, then going for the boost would have been a waste of time. Players have the choice of going for the boost whenever they want, so it can be utilized during the middle of the level. The point is that the speed boost acts like an item that must be properly used when the situation calls for it, and benefits more skilled players.